THE HYPERION PACKED TO GREET THE GREAT PIANIST.

A Brilliant Reception Given Him at the Yale Art School After the Matinee.

An enormous audience greeted the great Polish planist, Paderewski, on the occasion of his first recital of the season at the Hyperion theater yesterday afternoon, an audience which for led here. The lobby of the theater was the scene of horrible pushing and jaming towards the one parrow gateway through which all had to pass. This Mrs. Charles DeForest. with the screaming of the men who sold photographs, souvenirs, analytical programs, etc., made things quite exciting and "New-Yorky," as some one expressed it. If it was hard to get in It was just as hard to get out. The photograph people and the other hawkers caused so much commotion with their business (which must be very lucrative considering how many people guest of Mr. Sanford. patronized them), that exit quite as difficult as entrance had been,

Paderewski played his very best and was evidently feeling that he had particularly friendly and appreciative lishe stepped on the stage and he responded by bowing several times before he sat down. Then came the big chords and arpeggios and a pause! Now the Beethoven Sonata, which he tunately several gorgeously apparelled dames with stiff, rustling skirts had not reached their seats and the ushers were too polite, we suppose, to stop them by main force so they proceeded noisily on their way and the Sonata He was evidently a little disconcerted tle incident ought to teach the Hyperion After this all went splendidly. Beethoven Sonata was very beautiful. Whatever may be said about his way of interpreting this master, he certainly plays him con amore in its best sense. They were marvellously performed and from a technical point of view were the best thing on the program. The Chopin numbers followed. Paderewski's Chopin playing is too well known now to need comment. It is only necessary to tell what Paderewski's "Cracovienne" was enthusiastically received and had to be repeated. It seems to have caught the popular taste just as the Minuet did. It is a much better composition, however, and is very fascinating as the composer plays it. The program closed with three Liszt numbers, a Concert Etude, the idyll "Au Bord d'une Source" and the second Rhapsody Hongroise, The "Au Bord d'une Source" was wonderfully played. Such limpidity and delicacy of touch. After the familiar Rhapsody he was called back to bow many times and finally was obliged to play again. He chose the popular "Valse Caprice" Rubenstein, but played it in such a manner that many boarding school girls who have it for a show-piece may have failed to recognize it. The whole recital was listened to with rapt attention and must have been a great success financially. We hope we shall hear him again here before the season is over.

THE RECEPTION.

After the recital Mr. Paderewski and Mr. Sanford's party proceeded to the Art school building, where a reception was given by Mr. Sanford in honor of

THE ADJOURNED TOWN MEETING. The several times adjourned annual evening at 8 o'clock. J. R. Campbell was the presiding officer.

The recommendations as presented by the committee regarding the action to he taken by the town officers in the government of town affairs was read. The chairman of the investigating committee stated that since the last meet. being the committee in charge, ing an invitation had been extended to the past and present treasurers and collectors for the past ten years to meet the committee and look over the accounts. Such meeting had been held, and nothing had been found to cause any change to be made in the report as already presented.

D. E. Morris stated that he had consulted with Collector Austin and he had expressed a desire to settle up the matters satisfactorily. When after an official arranging of the accounts, if it is found that he is indebted to the town, he is anxious to settle what is right.

Judge F. C. Bartholomew presented report of an investigation of the books of the collector and treasurer, which he had made, which was in part substantially the same as in the report already offered, but with a few exceptions which showed different figures in the general result, and evidently a mistake in figuring on the part of one or others of the accountants. A couple of large sheets of paper with the figures taken from the trasurer's book were displayed on the stage and Attorney Fowler explained the meaning of the same to the meeting. There seemed to be a difference of pinion between Judge Bartholomew and Attorney Fowler regarding the charging of interest to the collector, which caused some useless discussion. H. F. Hall offered a motion to coninue the committee with power to consuit with the selectmen relative to aranging and settling up the matters in uestion. The motion prevailed.

SKIPPED WITH THE BICYCLE, A Foxy Young Man Hired a Bicycle and Took it to New York.

N. S. Sleeman, the Chapel street bicycle dealer, who rents out bicycles for a short time, was out of town yesterday, and while he was absent his clerk, a young lady, rented out an Ontario wheel to a young man who said he was traveling for a shoe house in Denver, Col., and was stopping at the Tontine hotel. He was to have been back with the wheel at 8:45, but as he had not yet returned at 9:45 the young lady clerk notified the police. The man registered at the Tontine as Paul Stearns and left there last evening to catch the 7:10 train for New York. Inquiry at the depot developed the fact that the bicycle was also checked to New York on the 7:10 train. police in New York were notified and found the bicycle in the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad baggage room. The thief had not, however, been captured up to a late hour last night.

John S. Beall, a business man of Spokane, who has been recently traveling in Idaho, was in Lewiston for several days last week, and while there was an which the Nez Perces Indians are receiving and making use of money now being paid them by the government according to agreement, for their unallotted lands. Mr. Beall said: "Lewiston and the whole region

The Indians, of course, had also made preparations, and had decided a long was reduced. Commissioner Doollitle time beforehand just what they would moved that the matter be laid on the do individually with their wealth when it should come to them. The payments commenced last Monday, when $50,000, payments have continued at the rate of $90,000 a day, which will be kept up, I understand, until the whole sum of over $1,500,000 is paid over to the Indians. of the state prison board, stating that The latter receive their checks from the agent at the reservation, which, you know, is some ten miles from Lewiston. The Lewiston banks cash the checks, all in gold, charging the Indians and voted to allow Donnelly to receive 50 cents a hundred, which covers the cost of having had the big sum transported and leaves them some profit. They can't count greenbacks, and silver, even in dollar pieces, presents difficulties to most of them The amounts received by the individual Indians range, I believe, all the way from $300 to about $3,000, according to whether he is a bachelor or a married man. If he refolces in a squaw and papooses he is a wealthy buck, for the larger his family the greater the amount he receives.

I saw an incident at one of the banks vesterday that was somewhat amusing. An Indian had left his squaw outside while he entered and drew about $1,000 or so. Half of this money he immediately deposited, the rest he put in his pocket, except a $5 piece, which he had changed to five silver dollars. he brought out and gave to the squaw with a grunt, which doubtless signified that it was all the money she was going to get out of this snap.

One thing may be said which is decidedly to the credit of the Indians. They are paying all their debts, even those extending back a dozen years or more. Every creditor stations himself or has a man at the bank, who, as fast as a debtor Indian receives his money reminds him of te debt. The Indian makes no murmur, but quietly pays over the amount. He never forgets the debt, and requires no account book to refer it. Many-I presume all of the Lewiston merchants-have frequently trusted these Indians for goods sold them at various times during the last few years, knowing that they were to receive money. The post trader at the reservation has trusted them to an almost unlimited extent in some instances. I was told that many Indians were indebted to him for sums ranging as high as $500. Of course it would have been hard on him and on the other merchants if the Indians had chosen to renounce their obligations, but none of Jim Reuben, the Indian who engineered the arrangement whereby the Indians were allotted the lands and recelved the money for the territory thrown open to the whites, is very conspicuous in an unassuming way abou Lewiston. He is unusually intelligent as Indians go, and his whole tribe place great reliance on his judgment upon all questions affecting them. He has always stood as a go-between from his people to the whites. It was he, you know, who went to Washington in the interest of the Nez Perces when the subject of allotment came up, and he stays around now to see that they get all that belongs to them. He gets a pretty good thing out of it himselftwo per cent of the whole sum paid the tribe, or over $30,000, besides his own family's share and allotment.

"The Indians are laying in a vast stock of blankets, saddles and similar useful articles, as well as buckets of beads for the squaws. They buy a great number of broad brimmed light hats. For months they have ben going through the stores selecting their purchases in advance. They buy the blankets having the gayest colors, and they will all be carrying miniature rain-bows on their backs for a long time to come. They pay from $3 to $12 for these blankets, but they don't buy them so much for quality as for color An Indian never bargains, and you can't show him things and talk him into buying them as you can the white customer. He insists on going through the stock and picking out what he wants, unaided. This saves a vast amount of labor, two or three clerks being able to wait on the Indians where a dozen or more would be required to wait on white people. Having made his selection he may come back every day or so to look at it for half an hour at a time, until he is in funds, when he will pay the amount asked without a word, and walk off with his purchase

"A Yakima firm-Coffin Brothers, who have had a great deal of experience with the Indians-went to Lewiston with a big tent and an enormous stock of the most brilliantly colored blankets imaginable. The Indians like the tent idea and the absence of counters, with the stock thrown around conveniently pleases them. A man with a merrygo-round set up his attraction next door to Coffin Brothers, and the latter with ready enterprise, bought him out Well, every Indian that purchases anything from Coffin Brothers gets a ticket entitling him to a free ride on the merry-go-round. Bucks, squaws and papooses take the wildest delight in the amusement, and it would make a horse laugh to note the expressions of half fright, half joy on their faces as they mount the hobby horses, and the mo tion commences to the alleged music of goods, suitable for large windows, a wheezy old hand organ. with very red artificial roses on their cheeks. The place was crowded with bucks who were paying $5 or so each for the privilege of treating the handmaidens to a bottle of ginger pop, sar saparilla and iron or similar mild drink. The law against selling intoxicating liquors to Indians is very stringent and, so far as I could see, was rigidly observed at Lewiston. I presume a interested observer of the manner in cloud of deputy United States marshals was hanging about, anyway. But the bucks paid champagne prices for soda water and were real bloods and so happy. Few or none of them had ever before had an opportunity, owing to financial stringency, to make themselves agreeable to the rosy cheeked beauties, but it was their turn to run
